THE ELUSIVE PIMPERNEL

I can't tell you how much The Disney Channel means to my family...and not just my kids, either! My wife and I love watching the Disney favorites that we grew up with, but lately there's been an added plus to my family's viewing. Not only is there the typical top-notch Disney fare (which is why we originally subscribed), but, of late your choice of other films has been wonderful. We all really loved seeing David Niven in "The Elusive Pimpernel," not to mention "The Bishop's Wife." To be able to see these classics of the silver screen without commercial interruption is a treat! Keep up the good work!

SHARI LEWIS A WINNER

I wanted you to know how much my three-year-old daughter, Beth, and I enjoyed your Shari Lewis special "You Can Do It." Beth was fascinated not only with the puppets but with the magic tricks, too. Ms. Lewis has a natural talent for entertaining all ages and has always been one of my favorites.

My mother saved my Lamb Chop and Charley Horse puppets and now my daughter can enjoy them too!

Another Shari Lewis show, "Cats," will air on Sunday, May 18th. It's part of "The Mouse Factory" series.

SIGN-LANGUAGE MAGIC

Thank you for a most beautiful movie, "Amy," starring Jenny Agutter and Barry Newman. It's one of the best movies, if not the best, our family has had the pleasure of watching! My seven-year-old daughter could watch it everyday and never tire of it.

Janice Hughes
Broken Arrow, OK

"Amy" is certainly an inspirational story about one woman's tireless work to help the deaf.

We recently received the following letter, which tells another heartfelt story about communicating with the deaf.

My wife and I and our three-year-old daughter, Amanda, who is profoundly deaf, drove across the country to Disneyland. In the car, Amanda used her 400-word sign-language vocabulary to talk obsessively about the star in her life, Mickey Mouse.

At the park, Amanda searched for Mickey. Suddenly she targeted him, and like lightning, darted in front of horse-drawn parades and zillions of people. Frantically trying to catch up with her, I saw that she stood before the towering mouse. Behind him were dozens of waiting parents with their kids and cameras ready. I was embarrassed that Amanda had rudely made her unannounced entry.

But just then Amanda and Mickey hugged, and Amanda began signing to the big character.

To my surprise, Mickey signed back, "Hi, what is your name?"

Amanda responded without missing one fingerspelling.

I had a lump in my throat and a tear in my eye. The magic of Disneyland will live in our hearts forever.

THE RACCOONS

All my life I've been a cartoon addict. I'm 18 now but my love of animation has not diminished since childhood.

Right now my absolute favorite cartoon series is "The Raccoons." I think the characters are all fantastic. Especially the three pigs and the Sneer mansion bears. Please don't ever cut this great series!

Nikki Rosenfeather
Wenatchee, WA

"The Raccoons" is indeed a clever and unique show. To find out more about it, see the article on page 20.

CAPTAIN UH, OH...

Captain EO, the unique, 3-D cinematic musical extravaganza starring Michael Jackson, has now been reset to premiere exclusively at Disneyland and Walt Disney World later this summer.

A Heartwarming Portrayal of Loyalty from A Child's Best Friend

size of 8½"

Often, a child's most touching moments are those spent with a faithful pup. Especially when the canine is a "partner in crime," a bond of loyalty exists. "In Disgrace" portrays just such a heartwarming childhood moment, on a limited edition collector plate, sure to be cherished by all who view it.

A little girl and her playful pup have wreaked havoc in Mother's garden, and now the youngster must stand in the corner for her misdeed. Accepting his share of the blame, her loyal dog takes his place by her side, awaiting the time when they can again frolic and play.

This charming art is one of Bessie Pease Gutmann's most famous works, earning for her wide acclaim both in the U.S. and abroad. Now, for the first time ever, this famous art is being presented on an officially authorized limited edition porcelain collector plate.

Offered through The Hamilton Collection, "In Disgrace" premieres A Child's Best Friend Plate Collection—portraying eight heartwarming scenes by Bessie Pease Gutmann. Each issue will be hand-numbered and accompanied by a same-numbered Certificate of Authenticity, attesting to its status as part of the edition limit of 14 firing days.

Dave Smith, archivist for The Walt Disney Company, answers questions and provides information about the studio's history and its productions.

What kind of cat was used in "The Cat from Outer Space"?

—PB., Amarillo, TX

Jake, the cat, was an Abyssinian. There were actually two cats—Rumple, and his twin sister Amber—who played the role. An Abyssinian was selected by the producers because they thought it looked more "alien."

Rumple—or is it Amber?—enacts the title role in "Cat from Outer Space"

When did Verna Felton die?

—J.K., Akron, OH

The great character actress, who supplied voices for many well-known Disney animated characters such as the fairy godmother in "Cinderella" and Flora in "Sleeping Beauty," died at the age of 76 in 1966.

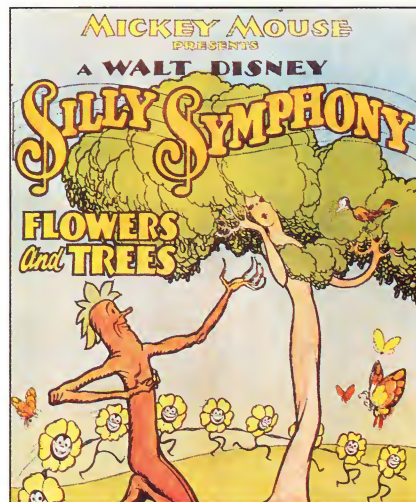

Why did Walt Disney's star actor, Mickey Mouse, have to wait until 1935 to appear in a color cartoon when the Silly Symphonies were done in color as early as 1932?

—G.G., St. Cloud, MN
It was significantly more expensive to produce cartoons in color, so in the early days of the process, when he was experimenting, Walt Disney decided to reserve use of color for the Silly Symphonies. That series was his training ground, and he felt that color would add to its popularity. The Mickey Mouse cartoons were so popular they did not really need a boost.

I remember all kinds of merchandise featuring Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs when the film came out in 1937, almost 50 years ago. Do commercial items featuring those characters still turn up?

—G.P., Minneapolis, MN

The Archives recently received a donation of an interesting box of Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs soap dating from 1938. The box contains seven compartments, for each of the Seven Dwarfs, each holding a bar of soap picturing the character—except for Grumpy. His empty compartment is labelled "Grumpy wouldn't take a bath, so he gets no soap."

"Flowers and Trees" became the first Silly Symphony to be filmed in color

When did the Mouseketeers first perform at Disneyland?

—M.O., New Orleans, LA

During Disneyland's first holiday season in 1955, a Mickey Mouse Club Circus was held under a big top between Fantasyland and Tomorrowland. Besides regular circus acts, the Mouseketeers appeared as featured performers doing acrobatics and stunts. Their TV show had just premiered a few months earlier.

Afternoon SHOWCASE

In "Buddies," two boys experience the joys and the sorrows that are a part of true friendship

By reaching out to help another, a girl discovers that beauty is more than skin deep in "I'm Sooo Ugly"

"Martin Needs A Sitter" is one of the award-winning episodes of our series "The Kids of DeGrassi Street"

The Disney Channel Introduces A Weekday Series of Young People's True-to-Life Dramas

Sensitive, slice-of-life dramas that have been especially selected for grade-schoolers make "Afternoon Showcase" a truly unique new series. Starting Monday, May 12, The Disney Channel will present every weekday at 4:30 p.m. (Eastern/Pacific time) critically-acclaimed programs that feature real kids facing real problems and situations—and overcoming them.

"Afternoon Showcase" is a remarkable, prize-winning selection of programs specially chosen for young people that fulfills the classic needs of all true drama—it's entertainment that's designed to inform and enlighten.

The centerpiece of "Afternoon Showcase" is the award-winning "The Kids of DeGrassi Street," which features kids in their actual neighborhood, and not child actors. A different episode of the series is scheduled for each Wednesday. Among the highlights of "The Kids of DeGrassi Street" are such superb programs as "Benjamin Walks the Dog," which explores the rivalry that develops between siblings, as well as an understanding of the love and familial bonds that exist between younger and older brothers. In "Noel Buys a Suit," the young Noel faces up to his father's remarriage.

During the rest of the week, the social settings of the daily programs are as diverse and intriguing as the dramatic situations themselves. In "Santiago's Ark," a sensitive young boy in the slums of New York is liberated by the powers of imagination. His experience leads to his understanding the difference between ideas and reality, but his spirit is strengthened and he continues to soar on the wings of imagination.

That growing awareness of the difference between appearances—or dreams—and real life is a central experience in growing up. In "Have You Ever Been Ashamed of Your Parents?," a teenaged girl learns that money and social standing aren't the true measure of a person's worth; love, understanding, and friendship are more important. That same theme is the core of "I'm Sooo Ugly," in which an awkward sixth grader, convinced she's an ugly duckling, reaches out to bolster the self-confidence of another. In doing so, she sees her own beauty—and her sense of self-worth and confidence rises.

Other noteworthy dramas include "The Hand-Me-Down Kid," about sharing and honesty between sisters. "The Buddies" explores the joys and sorrows of true friendship.

"Afternoon Showcase" offers young people a truly unique weekday series. With such carefully chosen programs as "The Kids of DeGrassi Street" every Wednesday, along with the other award-winning dramas, this is a series that not only entertains grade-schoolers, but offers them positive social and personal values as well. ♥

Things, and even sisters, are not what they seem when Hayley Mills plays identical twins in The Disney Trap." In these scenes from "Parent Trap II," airing this summer, Hayley jokingly wears a brunette

SHE'S BACK! THEY'RE

This Summer Hayley Returns As Grown-up Twins

Hayley Mills was a phenomenon of the 1960s, a teenage superstar with six Disney hits ("Pollyanna" 1960; "The Parent Trap" 1961; "In Search of the Castaways" 1962; "Summer Magic" 1963; "The Moon-Spinners" 1964; "That Darn Cat" 1965) and legions of fans who sent her 7,500 letters weekly. Today that avalanche has subsided but as the post office at The Walt Disney Company testifies, no week has passed in 26 years without its packet of fan mail for Hayley. In July, 1983, two-and-a-half months after its launch, The Disney Channel aired "Pollyanna" and Hayley's comet blazed again. Subscribers clamored for more, the Channel obliged, the fan mail swelled, and it became clear that a contemporary comedy starring Hayley Mills was imperative. And as a result, "Parent Trap II" premieres on The Channel this summer.

"The Parent Trap" was my favorite film," Hayley said recently, "so I welcomed the chance to work for Disney again. I wasn't sure, though, that after 25 years I could do justice to the original. But everyone at Disney was so enthusiastic about the project that I finally said yes. And I think it's turned out well."

This time Hayley reprises her dual role as Sharon and Susan, identical twins who now are adults. But instead of plotting to reunite their divorced parents, as they did in the first movie, they find themselves enmeshed in a matchmaking scheme woven by Sharon's daughter.

"The twins have grown up quite nicely, I think," Hayley said. "Twenty-five years is a big gap and an awful lot happens to a person, but the girls are basically the same. We all stay the same inside. I think they're quite fun."

Certainly a lot has happened to Hayley since she left the Disney organization at age 19.

"I was becoming a young woman during the '60s, and that was a pretty wild time for me," she said. "I'd been sheltered by the studio and over-protected by my parents (actor John Mills and playwright Mary Hayley Bell). I had a protracted adolescence, I lost self-confidence, and in fact I even lost my identity for a while. As an actress I projected a kind of impulsive, Channel's sequel to "The Parent Trap" wig to thicken the comedy's plot.

In 'Parent Trap II'

spontaneous, happy-go-lucky personality, although as a young woman I was becoming much more complex. I simply didn't know who I really was, but I did keep on working. It was like my lifebelt."

At age 20 she returned to her home in England and began seeking "interesting, more mature roles. But because the Disney films were so popular," she said, "it took forever and a day to shake off that squeaky-clean image." After making a number of so-so British pictures, Hayley decided to give up acting for good. "I stopped working for a year," she said. "Then I re-thought the whole thing and admitted that I did not want to quit

Hayley Mills arrived at the Walt Disney Studio as a precocious 13-year-old. She left it, six pictures later, a poised beauty of 19. Hayley remembers the happiness and heartaches of growing up in Hollywood, separated by work and distance from her native England.

"At first, when I began 'Pollyanna,' my mother and brother and I lived in a Beverly Hills hotel," she said. "It was a fantasyland. There were televisions in every room and the tables were piled with fruit and candy. We were often invited to Walt Disney's home for dinner. It was the most eventful period of my life."

Hayley played the title role of Pollyanna Whittier, an orphan whose irrepressible optimism touches everyone around her. It was only her second picture and she was surrounded by seasoned co-stars like Jane Wyman, Richard Egan, Karl Malden, and Nancy Olson. But Hayley, a ferocious mugger, held her own among such professionals. "David," Richard Egan said to director David Swift after shooting a scene with Hayley, "I've got two chances in that shot—little and none at all." The movie newcomer went on to win a special Academy Award for her performance.

Hayley's next picture was "The Parent Trap." She played identical twins who attempt to reconcile their estranged parents. Although the dual role called for 14-year-old Hayley to sing, dance, and generally clown around, she was often moody off-screen, suffering the pangs of adolescence. "At that time I had no desire to be a child actress," she said. "What I really wanted to be was a horsewoman." Yet with the release of "The Parent Trap," Hayley became the most popular juvenile star in the world.

In "In Search of the Castaways," Hayley emerged as a sweet 16-year-old with a grown-up hairdo, evening dresses, and an on-screen boyfriend.

At 17 and growing more beautiful every day, Hayley starred with Dorothy McGuire in "Summer Magic," playing a widow's daughter who wangles the use of a rent-free house for the family.

Bidding goodbye to little girl roles, 18-year-old Hayley portrayed Nikky Ferris in "The Moon-Spinners," an English lass vacationing in Crete who falls in love with a young man suspected of being a jewel thief. Peter McEnery, 23, was her co-star, and the fellow fortunate enough to give Hayley her first real screen kiss. Her adolescent doldrums were behind her. She and McEnery enjoyed water sports during location filming, and made a sightseeing tour of Athens on their way home.

Hayley was 19 when she made "That Darn Cat," her sixth and last picture for Walt Disney. Occasionally during her non-exclusive contract with the studio, Hayley appeared in films for other producers. She was a recognized actress as well as a comedienne, and in a way had outgrown the limitations of Disney's light-hearted movies. But her parting was friendly and sentimental. "My years with Disney were very special," she said, "which is why I'm glad to be back for 'Parent Trap II.' It's a wonderful opportunity, a marvelous chance to play two parts again, and best of all, to work with the Disney Studio once more."

forever." She turned her back on films, though, and launched a new career in television and the theater, where she has become eminently successful.

The Hayley Mills of today is a radiant, blue-eyed blonde of 40 with two sons of her own, Crispian Boulting, 13, and Jason Lawson, 9. Crispian, she said, wants desperately to be an actor. "He's been offered a job in a television series by the BBC. He's also taking his entrance exams to go to a public school in England. At the moment I think that's more important. But I'm not surprised that he's interested in acting. I am, his father (the late director Roy Boulting) was, and so is his grandfather. It's in his blood on both sides. Jason, now, takes everything very much in stride. He loves coming to the studio or theater when I'm working, and hanging about, chatting with everybody. But he hasn't shown any particular interest in acting. At this point he thinks he'd like to own a pub or drive a taxi."

Hayley and the boys live in a house outside Hampton Court near London, a half-hour's drive from her parents' home there. "We're a close family," she said. "I see my parents frequently, and I try to visit my sister Juliet in California every year.

"I'd love to do more work over here, but my home is in England and, unless you're right under their noses, people tend to forget you. Indeed, they wonder if you're dead or if you've retired and are out growing mushrooms somewhere. They have to be reminded that you're still at it."

Hayley's fondness for the Disney organization has remained steadfast through the years. In 1981 she returned to host "Disney Animation: The Illusion of Life," a behind-the-scenes TV tour of the studio. In 1983 she narrated "When You Wish Upon a Star," a monumental BBC radio series consisting of ten 90-minute programs documenting Walt Disney's career and achievements. This summer she plans to be back in the States with her children. "And of course we're looking forward to visiting Disneyland and Walt Disney World," she said. "The boys are really excited because they haven't been to Florida. That will be a big adventure for them." 🐻

The BOB HOPE Theatre

Hollywood's King of Comedy in a Special Selection of his Finest Films

Court jester to presidents, tireless entertainer of American troops overseas, host of TV variety spectacles, and a golf enthusiast bedecked in traditional plus-fours — such are the images that spring to mind when one mentions the name Bob Hope. But those images tend to overshadow Hope's most enduring legacy. Using wisecracks, rapid fire repartee with such co-stars as Bing Crosby, Jane Russell, and the late Jimmy Cagney, and a highly personal brand of dancing best described as eccentric, Bob Hope proved himself a comic genius whose movies rank among the finest comedies to ever grace the silver screen.

Beginning Saturday, May 17, nine classic Bob Hope films will appear on The Disney Channel with the premiere of "Bob Hope Theatre." A new movie will debut every other Saturday evening at 9:00 p.m. (Eastern and Pacific time zones). Included in this exclusive sampler are such favorites as "The Son of Paleface," the first film in the series, "The Road to Bali," and "The Seven Little Foys" (in which Jimmy Cagney recreates his most famous role as the legendary showman George M. Cohan). The films showcase the talents that made Hope one of the top-ten box office draws from 1941 to 1953 (with the exception of the year 1948). Six of the nine featured pictures date from this period when Hope was Hollywood's king of comedy.

Hope is best known for the classic "Road" pictures, which combined his skills with those of that silver-voiced crooner, Bing Crosby. The beautiful Dorothy Lamour, Hollywood's "sarong girl," was always the target of the two's romantic intentions, with side-splitting results. "The Road to Singapore" was the trio's first effort together, and the 1940 smash hit led to six other films over the years. In addition to "The Road to Bali" (made in 1952, and the only Road picture shot in color), "Bob Hope Theatre" will present "The Road to Rio," one of the other superb standouts from the series.

Further testimony to the stature of Hope's film work can be found in the roster of actors and actresses appearing as Hope's co-stars. "Son of Paleface," which debuts May 17, pairs Hope with the brunette beauty Jane Russell, and one of the screen's most famous cowboys, Roy Rogers. "Paris Holiday" unites Hope with the statuesque Swedish star Anita Ekberg and France's Fernandel in a sly comedy which features Bob as a Hollywood producer lost in racy Paris.

Born in Eltham, England, in 1903, Leslie Townes Hope — as he was christened — came to America as a child. His show business career began in his teens, when he, like so many other great Hollywood comedians, entered the world of vaudeville as a song and patter man. While Hope made it to Broadway in 1929, radio was the young entertainer's medium, and so great was his success that he was invited to Hollywood to appear in the musical variety feature "The Big Broadcast of 1938." Not only did it secure his film career, but it was in that film that Hope first sang the lyrics of what would become his theme song: "Thanks for the Memory."

With the premiere of "Bob Hope Theatre" this May 17, subscribers to The Disney Channel can relive those memories of Hope at the height of his movie career. The nine feature films selected demonstrate the sparkling verve and wit that characterize the Hollywood screen comedies of the '40s and '50s. The "Bob Hope Theatre" is a tribute to one of the great film stars of all time. 🍷

DONNELLY RHODES

On Acting, Success, And "Doc" Roberts' Love Life

Donnelly Rhodes, who stars as "Doc" Roberts in "Danger Bay" on The Disney Channel, claims he has the best of all possible worlds.

"I get to spend my summers in Vancouver, a beautiful city, where we shoot the series," he says. "I enjoy playing 'Doc' Roberts because it's an interesting role."

"'Doc' is a marine veterinarian and a widower with two lively kids. And now, I'm pleased to see, romance is entering his life. Susan Walden has joined our cast as J. L. Duval, a young helicopter pilot. Needless to say, 'Doc' is already attracted to her."

It's easy to see why. Miss Walden is a stunning green-eyed blonde who still has loyal fan support from her days as Linda Larkin on "The Young and the Restless" TV serial, and she frequently guests in series like "Hill Street Blues," "Mike Hammer" and "T.J. Hooker."

But getting back to Donnelly Rhodes, it is evident that he takes his career good-naturedly, although he works nonstop and has racked up over a hundred major screen and TV roles since settling in Hollywood from his native Canada in 1964.

"Shall I reveal the secret of success in the acting business?" he continues. "It's quite simple. One must be ambitious, hardworking, capable — and exceedingly lucky. I learned that the hard way."

"As a 17-year-old, I had no idea of what I wanted to do. I didn't think much past lunch. Then I went into the (Royal Canadian) Air Force and was drafted into doing a play while still enlisted. After leaving the service I got involved with the Manitoba Theater Center, the first professional regional theater in Canada. I did everything. I was the stage manager, the props man, the lighting man, and I played small parts. Later I was picked to go to the National Theater School of Canada for a three-year course. The training was pretty intensive. It formed me. When I came out, whether I liked it or not, I was an actor. Yet even then I didn't realize that this was what I'd be doing for the rest of my life."

Rhodes began his Hollywood career as a Universal Studio contract player, earning an award for his performance in an

"Alfred Hitchcock Presents" TV show and portraying an assortment of heavies in other, less distinguished productions.

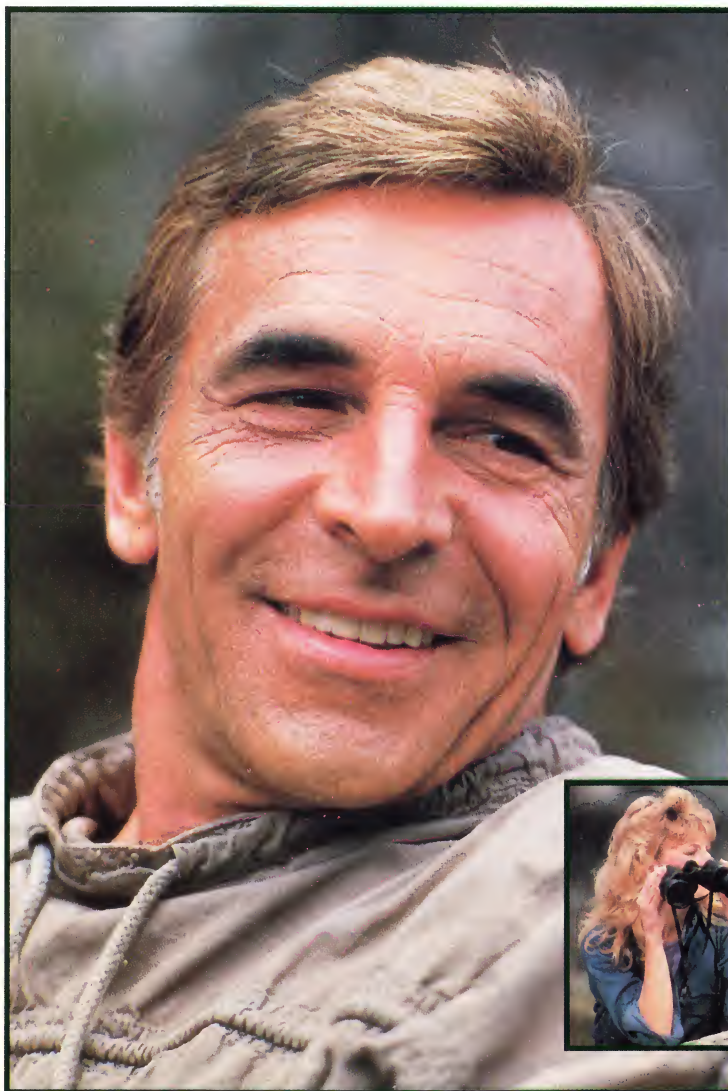

Today he divides his time between "Danger Bay" location filming in Vancouver and a two-acre spread in the foothills dividing Santa Monica from the San Fernando Valley in Southern California, where he and his wife, actress Deanne Henry, have their home. Rhodes has plans for producing some pictures of his own in Canada.

"I don't have that same powerful urge to perform that I used to," he admits. "Somebody said that making a TV series is like dancing with a gorilla. It's exhausting, but you can't let go. And there's a limit to your stamina, to how much you can do."

"I'm ready to work behind the camera for a while. I just came back from a shoot in Florida, where I wallowed around in a swamp fighting off a bunch of actors using karate chops and kicks. It's hard to do that stuff when you're cold and wet and you can feel the old muscles getting tight. After I rubbed the sprains out at the end of the day, I dropped in on the producer. He'd had a hard day too. He'd been out playing a tough game of golf!" 🏌️

Find It In the Library

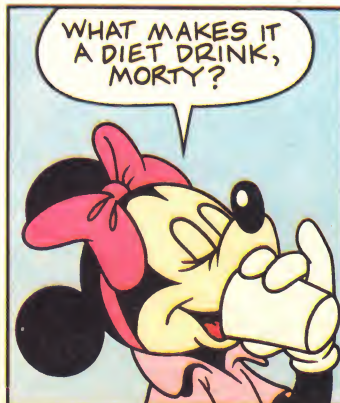

Some of The Disney Channel's notable films and series are based on books. So double your fun: watch the movie or series on TV and then read the book for a long-lasting treat. Three of the most popular films in this month's Hayley Mills Film Festival are based on novels.
Pollyanna is an adaptation of Eleanor H. Porter's novel of the same title published in 1912 to immediate acclaim.
The Moon-Spinners was a novel written by Mary Stewart. The book was originally published in 1962.
Summer Magic was a charming novel originally entitled "Mother Carey's Chickens." Written by Kate Douglas Wiggin, it was first published in 1917.

The Swamp Fox, featuring the Revolutionary War adventures of General Francis Marion, was adapted from Dr. Robert Bass' biography,
"The Swamp Fox: The Life and Campaigns of Francis Marion," published in 1959.

THE RACCOONS

AND CYRIL SNEER, THE PINK AARDVARK

Hey, what's that crazy Bert up to now? It's a good thing his raccoon friends Ralph and Melissa are usually nearby to rescue him when his adventures don't exactly turn out the way he expected. He could get into serious trouble, except that Ralph and Melissa set him straight. They have been coming to his aid for quite a while now.

It was five years ago that Bert came from the city to spend Christmas with Ralph and Melissa. (That was in "The Christmas Raccoons." It was a holiday special and was the first "Raccoons" show made.) Once settled into the little spare room in the top of the Raccoondominium, Bert stayed on. One day's ventures led to the next, and today life in the forest is just too exciting to leave.

But Bert isn't just a dumb daredevil. He's a good guy. He is usually trying to protect his friends and their forest from the scary Cyril Sneer, that cigar-chomping, greedy, old pink aardvark, who will do anything for money. High on Cyril's list of money-making schemes is to cut down the trees of the Evergreen Forest.

Everybody is afraid of Cyril. The Raccoons fear they'll be driven out of the Evergreen Forest. The cute little pigs, who work for him, shudder when he yells at them. His scrawny dog cringes when old Cyril is angry, knowing he'll get kicked across the room.

Perhaps most frightened of all is Cedric, Cyril's brainy son, who works for his father, poring over books of numbers with the help of his big, thick glasses. But the Raccoons are his friends. Why wouldn't they be? He's a nice aardvark . . . unlike his father.

All that goes on in the Evergreen Forest comes out of the imagination of a man named Kevin Gillis. He thought up the characters, and created the shows. He even wrote the music. (He actually started his career as a folk-singer.)

He has always been fascinated by raccoons, with their masks that make them look mischievous, the funny big circles around their tails, and the way they wash their food. In real life, Mr. Gillis has trouble with raccoons, who tip over the garbage cans at his vacation cottage. But that's not reason enough for him to dislike them. On the contrary, he likes their adventurous spirit.

Kevin Gillis thinks that the main reason why his characters are interesting is that none of them are all bad or all good. He believes that animals, like people, aren't all one way. Bert is usually a hero, but is sometimes selfish and bragging. Cyril's a villain, to be sure, but occasionally shows that he has a heart inside his twisted, angry body.

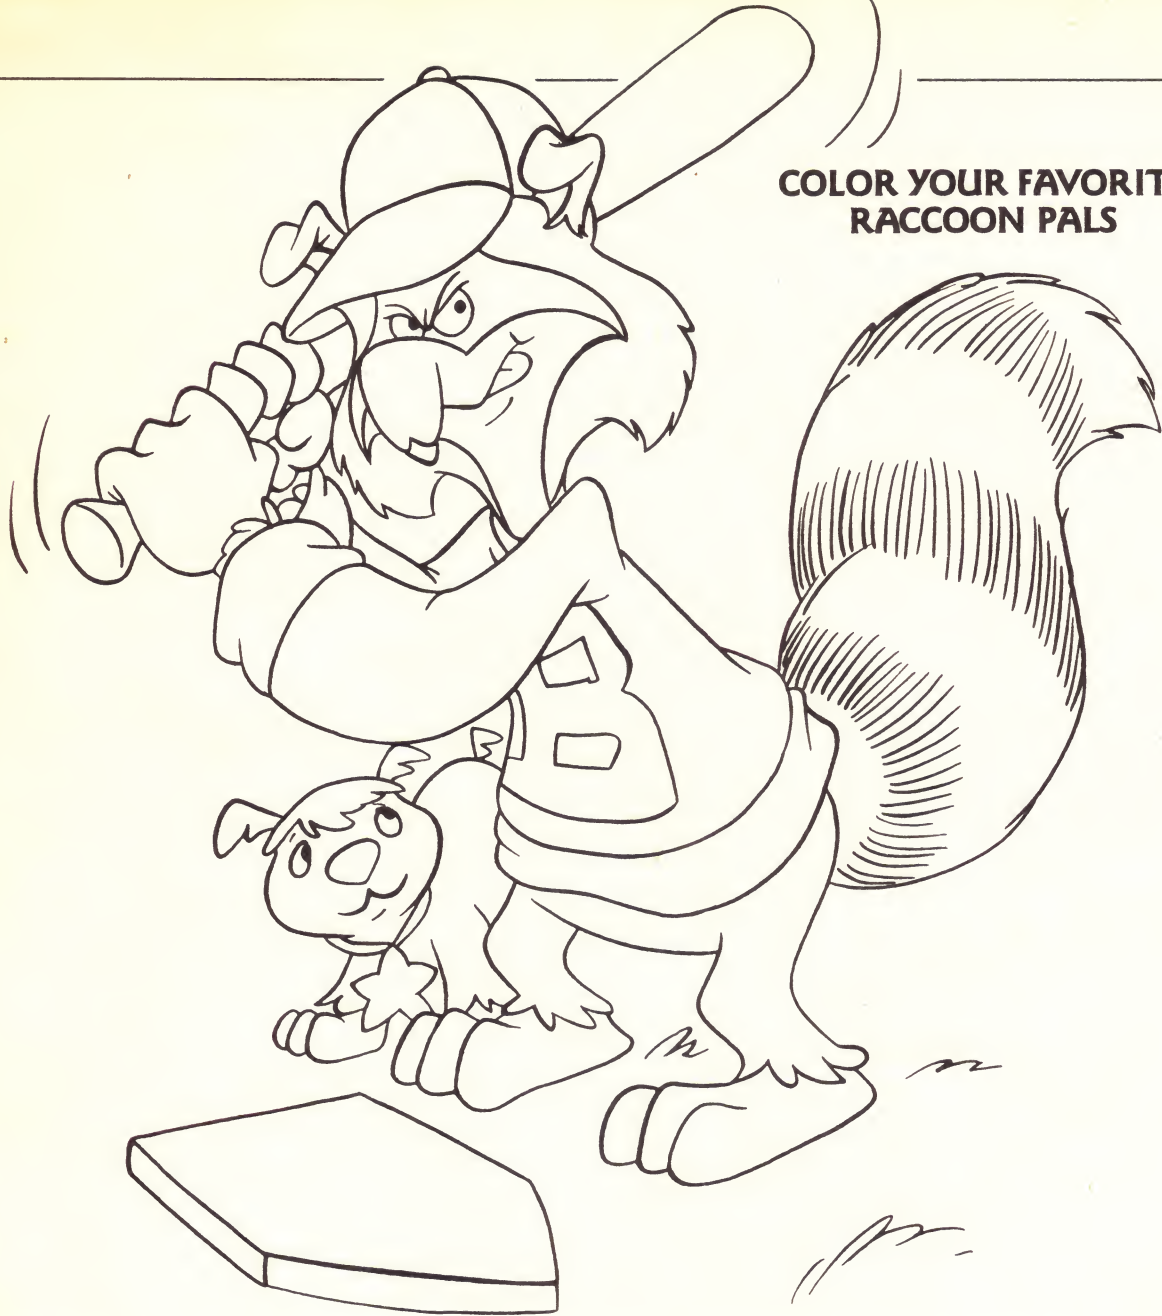

Speaking of Cyril, if you've ever wondered why the villain is played by a pink aardvark, here's the answer. Mr. Gillis loves animals and he didn't want children to be prejudiced toward a certain kind of animal because of nasty Cyril. "I want to keep the lines of animal-child communication open," he says.

Little harm done: Aardvarks in real life live in far away Africa, eat termites, and certainly aren't pink. ♡

The inhabitants of the Evergreen Forest (clockwise from the left): Julie and Tommy spend the night in a tent, protected by their dogs, Schaeffer and Broo. The children know nothing about what really goes on in the woods, but Schaeffer and Broo know all. Guarding Sneer Mansion against an assault by the fearless Bert Raccoon are Cyril Sneer's shivering blue dog, and one of his trembling pig employees, backed up by a bear. Ralph and Melissa Raccoon keep big Bert in line; and they're all friends with Cyril's son, Cedric (right), a nice aardvark, and Sophia Tutu, Cedric's adoring girlfriend.

EXPANDED PRIME-TIME SERIES

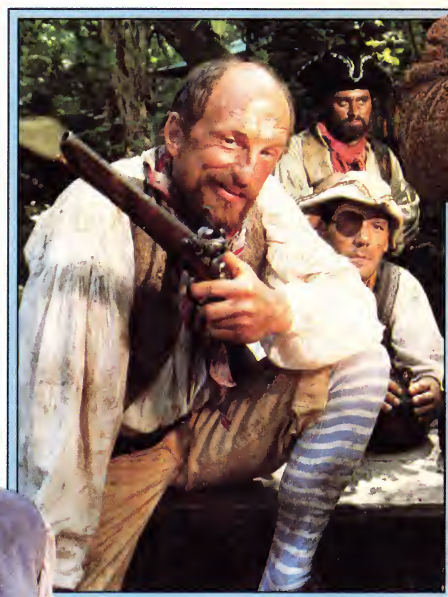

The Disney Channel has expanded its family prime time to run from 6:00 to 9:00 p.m. (Eastern/Pacific time). Series will now play at regular time slots within these hours, and will feature different episodes each week. Some of the series are brand new, others are back by popular demand, but all of them are ones the whole family can enjoy together at the same time each week.

THE SWAMP FOX

One of the most popular Disney mini-series, The Swamp Fox is an eight-part account of the swashbuckling adventures of Revolutionary War officer Francis Marion, alias Swamp Fox (played by Leslie Nielsen). It will air on consecutive Tuesdays at 8:00 p.m. (Eastern/Pacific time), starting May 13.

Walt Disney introduces each fast-paced episode with lore of the Revolutionary War and the escapades of the speedy and wily Swamp Fox, leader of a tattered but tough band of fighters in the Continental Army.

DISNEY'S RETURN TO TREASURE ISLAND

The gripping tale of buried treasure, piracy, romance, justice and injustice continues through June. The fifth hour of the 10-hour mini-series premieres Friday, May 16, at 8:00 p.m. (Eastern/Pacific time), with consecutive episodes playing each Friday until the series' exciting completion. A sequel to Robert Louis Stevenson's "Treasure Island," the story continues where the classic tale left off. The new mini-series boasts a star-studded cast and magnificent filming in Wales, England, Jamaica and Spain.

THE EDISON TWINS

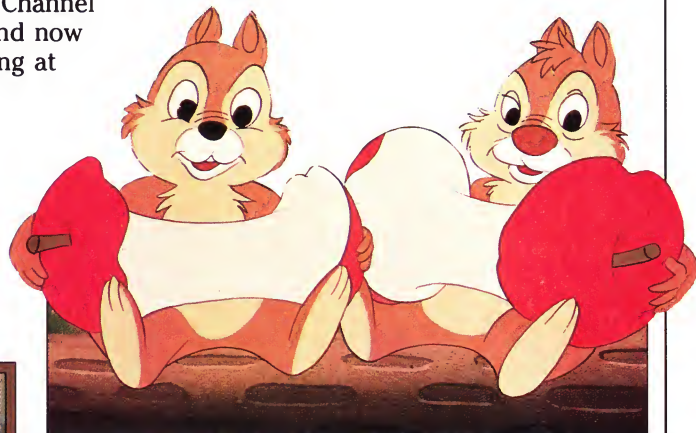

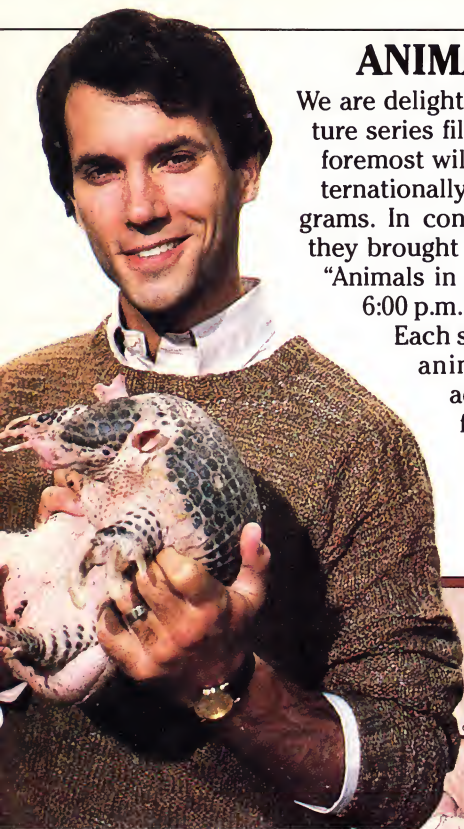

Teen sleuths Tom and Annie Edison's world is filled with mysterious occurrences. But with scientific know-how, they dig out the answers. Join the suspense and fun in one of the longest running series on pay TV, now regularly scheduled Wednesdays at 8:00 p.m. (Eastern/Pacific time).

ANIMALS IN ACTION

We are delighted to present a brand new nature series filmed by Survival Anglia, Britain's foremost wildlife organization, producers of internationally acclaimed films and television programs. In conjunction with The Disney Channel they brought you "Wilderness Bound," and now "Animals in Action" each Sunday evening at 6:00 p.m. (Eastern/Pacific time).

Each show focuses on just one animal trait or specific adaptation. The close-up filming was done around the globe by 10 of the world's top wildlife cinematographers.

THE BEST OF WALT DISNEY PRESENTS

The Disney Channel has carefully picked the finest shows from "The Wonderful World of Disney" for this series. The special collection has been given a new name, "The Best of Walt Disney Presents," and a regular time slot: Thursdays at 8:00 p.m. (Eastern/Pacific time).

There was a lot to pick from: the show ran for 29 years on network television, and garnered more than 65 awards. Other shows from "The Wonderful World of Disney" will air weekdays at 11:30 a.m. (Eastern/Pacific time) under the title "Walt Disney Presents."

STILL THE BEAVER

The all-time favorite Disney Channel series is back! "Still the Beaver" will encore in its entirety. And this time the Cleaver family can be seen regularly, Mondays at 8:00 p.m. (Eastern/Pacific time).

The Cleavers are loved for their comical and serious look at family life. Beaver, Wally, and Wally's friend Eddie Haskell are as forthright and funny as adults as they were as kids in "Leave it to Beaver."

DANGER BAY

The Roberts family tangles with dangerous drug runners at sea in an exciting two-part adventure, with parts one and two on Wednesdays May 14 and May 21, 8:30 p.m. (Eastern/Pacific time).

J. L. Duval, debuting as the new owner of Harbour Air, flies into immediate action to help them, but the drug runners are armed.

Bob Hope Theatre SON OF PALEFACE

Every other Saturday night becomes a laugh riot with the exclusive premiere of a new comedy film on Bob Hope Theatre starting May 17. Leading off the line-up is that wacky western "Son of Paleface," which reteams Hope with Jane Russell in the smash sequel to their 1948 hit, "The Paleface." Once again Bob is a bumbling coward turned shaky gunman, and Russell is the legendary Calamity Jane. Roy Rogers, that veteran cowboy of the silver screen, and the Native American character actor Iron Eyes Cody round out the noteworthy cast. "Son of Paleface" stands as one of Bob Hope's comic masterpieces.

POLLYANNA

The Hayley Mills Film Festival opens appropriately with the movie that marked Hayley's American debut and launched her career with Disney. She plays an orphan who comes to live with her wealthy, spinster aunt, whose control over the town renders it staid and cheerless. But Pollyanna's sunny optimism affects one person after another, until the whole town has changed. Her apparently unloving aunt is the last holdout. The star-studded cast includes Jane Wyman, Richard Egan, and Karl Malden.

TRENCHCOAT

Margot Kidder stars as Mickey Raymond, a mystery novel writer caught in a true-life conspiracy, which takes her on a mad flurry of narrow escapes and deadly confrontations.

HERE COME THE LITTLES

Meet the Littles, a tiny (size-wise) family of five (Mom, Dad, Tom, Lucy and Grandpa) who live within the walls of the Bigg family's house. But as this charming animated feature opens, trouble descends when the Biggs disappear in Africa, leaving their son Henry in the clutches of his nasty guardian, Uncle Augustus. When Augustus forces Henry to move in with him, Tom and Lucy find themselves trapped in Henry's suitcase, triggering a wild series of adventures as Grandpa Little and Cousin Dinky try to rescue Tom, Lucy — and Henry Bigg. Based on the popular Saturday morning cartoon series, this exclusive Disney Channel premiere is a heady blend of fast-paced action and comedy.

Danny Kaye plays a wimp who impersonates his twin brother, a night club performer, in this breezy comedy.

But the local banker (Keenan Wynn) gives them a snow job instead of cold cash. In a final effort to raise the money, Johnny enters a no-holds-barred snowmobile race, although he's a novice on the slopes, and proves there's no business like snow business for producing a blizzard of laughs.

THE TITFIELD THUNDERBOLT

Titfield's railway line may be old — well, frankly, it's right antiquated — but that doesn't mean the villagers don't love their old train, the Titfield Thunderbolt. In fact, the villagers run the rail line themselves, even if it means war with the local modern bus line in this boisterous British comedy.

THE ROAD TO RIO

Dorothy Lamour is the beautiful brunette menaced by her nefarious aunt (deliciously portrayed by Gale Sondergaard); Bob Hope and Bing Crosby are the musicians determined to come to her rescue in this screwball comedy. Lovers of the '40s Big Band sound will delight in Bob and Bing's crooning with such stars as The Andrews Sisters in this, one of the finest of the seven "Road" pictures the trio made together. May 31; June 3, 5, 8, 11, 16 20

RIVER OF THE RED APE

A team of naturalist-explorers attempts a 200-mile descent of the obscure Alas River from its source in northern Sumatra to the Indian Ocean. The region abounds in rare and vanishing species, but what excites the expeditioners most is the endangered orangutan — "the red man of the jungle." May 25, 27; June 7

THE RACCOONS

Bert, Ralph and Melissa plan a "Surprise Attack" on Cyril Sneer, but when the nasty aardvark Sneer discovers what's afoot, the plot thickens with intrigue and surprises.

PARIS HOLIDAY

In this third exclusive film premiere on Bob Hope Theatre, Bob plays a Hollywood nabob on a transatlantic jaunt to Paris, France, in search of a screenplay. The hilarity mounts when he meets the statuesque Swedish beauty Anita Ekberg and then has the first of several run-ins with France's top film funnyman, the sly Fernandel. The result? It's vintage farce filled with rapid-fire repartee, Hope's double-takes, and wild buffoonery.

This haunting documentary explores the Great Depression, using rarely seen footage of the period punctuated by the popular songs of the day.

Dom DeLuise, starring in "The Mouse Factory" on The Channel this month, is a comedian who's at home at the range. Cooking plays an important part in his life, and he has the upholstery to prove it. Not one to hog his culinary secrets, Dom is writing a cookbook in collaboration with his 87-year-old mother, Vincenza. Entitled "Eat This," it contains a hearty helping of their Italian family recipes, a healthy portion of contemporary low-cal recipes, and a sprinkling of favorite recipes from Dom's celebrity friends, such as Dinah Shore's moussaka and Nancy Reagan's pecan pumpkin pie. It'll be out for Christmas, from Simon and Schuster.

Dom DeLuise pours a lot of delicious family secrets into his new cookbook first time he worked for Disney Studios.

Since then, his career has included a string of successes, including the popular "Streets of San Francisco" television detective series, and an Emmy-winning performance for the television production "Fatal Vision". He has recently completed filming "Billy Galvin," a father and son story to be released this summer.

Aside from his many film and television credits, Malden has enjoyed a long association with American Express as their company spokesperson. When he leaves his Beverly Hills estate to go on location, we know what he doesn't leave home without...

Roy Rogers was not exactly a newcomer when he did "Son of Paleface" with Bob Hope (see page 11). As a matter of fact, it was his 103rd theatrical release.

He was born November 5, 1911 and given the name Leonard Slye.

His name change came in 1938 when Republic Studios decided that he needed a name with box office appeal. They determined that Will Rogers' success proved that Rogers was a good name and since Roy meant king, they decided that their "King of the Cowboys" would be Roy Rogers.

Roy's multidimensional career includes extensive film credits, 100 half-hour TV shows between 1952 and 1957 with his wife Dale Evans, memorable record albums, and numerous guest television appearances (including "The Fall Guy"). And, yes, there are 565 Roy Rogers Restaurants in association with the Marriott Corporation. He and Dale just recently opened "Happy Trails Resort," the first of a chain of recreational vehicle parks.

When Karl Malden won the part of Reverend Ford in "Pollyanna," (see page 31), it was the

Also appearing in "Pollyanna". Jane Wyman is portraying the seemingly untouchable and unfeeling Aunt Polly, not unlike her successful role of Angela Channing in the popular series "Falcon Crest." Although the Angela character is more ruthless than Aunt Polly, in both situations Ms. Wyman's character is strong-willed.

While the Academy Award-winning actress has experienced great success in radio, film and television, Ms. Wyman continues to devote a good deal of energy to the Arthritis Foundation and has been a national spokesperson for the organization. She was honored this past year with the award for Distinguished Achievement in Film by the American Cinema Awards. She has two children, Maureen and Michael Reagan, from her former marriage to Ronald Reagan.

June 22 marks the first anniversary of Disneyland's high-tech "Videopolis." And for the first time, Disney Channel's DTV will be featured on the two giant overhead video screens and 70 television monitors, which are arranged in a "wall paper" effect surrounding the dance floor.

Fun's a Snap.

From castles to caves — from mountains to moats — playing in the sand has never been more fun than with the Little Tikes Turtle Sandbox. The unique swing-away shell protects it from weather and pets so it's always ready for busy little beachcombers. And, like the turtle, it's built to last a long, long time. The Little Tikes Turtle Sandbox. Sloooow much fun.
